MAY I TAKE YOUR ORDER?

A: Let me see... I think I'll have...no...let's see..

B: Are you going to take all day to decide what you want?

C: I want a hamburger and French fries.

D: Wait your turn. We all agreed. We're ordering left to right.

E: I think I'm going to pass out. I haven't eaten since yesterday.

F: I'm really not that hungry. I don't mind waiting.

A: Last time I was here I had the fish. So this time, I think I'll have... let's see...

B: Why don't I just go first?

C: Or I could go first since I know what I want- hamburger and french fries.

D: No! We're going to order from left to right. Otherwise our orders will get all confused. Like last time.

E: Could I just get a glass of water? I'm feeling light headed.

F: I'll go get you some water. I'm not that hungry any way.

A: I've got it! I know what I want. No. That has nuts in it. I'm allergic to nuts. Let's see...

B: That's it! You don't get to go first. Let's start right to left instead.

C: That leaves me still in the middle. But that's okay since I know what I want- hot dog and chips.

D: You said you wanted a hamburger! See now- it's already getting messed up.

E: Has anybody brought my water yet?

F: I can't leave now. I'm first, since now we're going right to left.

A: What? I'm last now?! I just figured out what I want!

B: Too bad. You're last. I'll have the fish sticks and cole slaw.

C: But I'm before you. Aren't I?

D: Would somebody just order! This is ridiculous.

E: Could someone call a doctor? I don't feel well.

F: I'll call the doctor. I'll be right back.

A: So I guess we should wait till he gets back since he's first, huh.
