I HAD A DREAM

A: This traffic is terrible and I was up all night- You won't believe the dream I had.

B: It couldn't have been any stranger than my dream.

C: I have those reoccurring dreams, you know- the same dream every night.

D: Nobody's dreams are weirder than mine.

E: My psychiatrist says he wants to write a paper for the psychiatric journal about my dreams.

F: You guys may THINK you have weird dreams, but I can guarantee you nothing even remotely compares with MY dream.

A: Oh yeah? I dreamed a giant cockroach landed in our backyard and began to eat our house- and I was still IN the house- and afraid to go out!

B: That's pretty weird, but I dreamed I went on a date with Paris Hilton but when we kissed good-night, all her teeth fell out.

C: Ugh. I always have the same dream- I'm being chased by a huge saxophone and my sneakers fall off and are swallowed up by the saxophone.

D: Yeah, well last night I dreamed that the doctor was examining me and found a growth on my back that looked exactly like Adam Sandler.

E: You should tell my psychiatrist about that dream. There might be another paper in it for him.

F: Those are pretty weird dreams, but NOTHING compared to MY dream.

A: What could you possibly dream about that would be worse than being eaten by a giant cockroach?

B: Yeah, or kissed by a toothless Paris Hilton?

C: Or chased by a sneaker eating saxophone?

D: Or having Adam Sandler growing out of your back?

E: My psychiatrist says people dream about the thing they fear most.

F: I think I might like to meet your psychiatrist. Maybe he could help me.

A: Your dream is so bad you want to talk to HIS psychiatrist?

B: That must be a pretty bad dream.

C: The saxophone dream wasn't really that scary- but he did swallow my best pair of sneakers.

D: Having Adam Sandler living on your back actually was pretty scary.

E: So what is it you dreamed about that was so terrifying?

F: I dreamed I got stuck in traffic with you guys and all you had to talk about was your lousy dreams.
